About Me

Graduated in Economic Sciences at the Federal University of Juiz de Fora, Campus GV UFJF - GV and participates in the Center of Agroecology of Governador Valadares NAGÔ. He is interested in complex systems and believes that models that incorporate the subtleties of social heterogeneity are useful in producing more effective and efficient democratic solutions for socio-economic demands. He also believes that the study of economics has ample room for transdisciplinarity in the formulation of simple, yet more holistic models. He is a very dedicated and focused researcher, who is used to entering new projects and initiatives, adapting to the processes, methodologies, and techniques, accepting challenges and always learning. He works well as a team and always seeks to pass on the knowledge he has acquired.

Experience

NAGÔ - Núcleo de Agroecologia de
Governador Valadares
Scholarship
2018 - present

The main objective of the NAGÔ program is to strengthen Agroecology in the Middle Rio Doce Territory, by supporting extension actions integrated with research and teaching in favor of sustainable rural development, and by overcoming the socio-environmental problems faced by family farmers and traditional peoples and communities of the region, aiming to promote Bem Viver through exchanges of knowledge, practices and agroecological social technologies.

With Nagô's support, he had the opportunity to learn and put into practice agroecology; cartography; photography; communication and art, popular and pedagogical; anthropological practice and ethics; popular methods of problem-solving; languages; cultures and traditional spiritualities. As well as learning about the ethno-environmental, political-historical and socio-economic context of traditional peoples.

Scholarship
2018 - presente

This project is linked to the NAGÔ Program (UFJF's Center of Agroecology / Governador Valadares Campus), carried out in partnership with the Tamanduá Agroecological Center (CAT), and aims to implement, monitor and promote agroecological-based social technologies with rural and urban communities in the Middle Rio Doce Territory. Through participatory methodologies aimed at the exchange of knowledge and the collective construction of knowledge, the extension actions of the project contemplated the theoretical and practical dimensions in the organization of courses, workshops, joint efforts and exchanges covering themes related to social technologies based on agroecology.

The project's activities involve the operational, logistical and financial organization of Rede Tamanduá, a short agri-food chain. Here he produced R algorithms for the analysis of data and documents that assist in planning and management.
